In the House of Commons on the 18th. D'Israeli, in an able and brilliant speech, proposed the government reform scheme. He said with views to the reform question, the government proposed a household suffrage franchise, with two years residential and tax paying conditions. Out of 723,000 householders in England and Wales, non-voters, this proposition would enfranchise 237,000, increasing borough voters to 881,000. The principle left 486,000 householders without votes, who, as they did not pay their rates, would not become qualified. The government thought it desirable, and offered to give compound householders an opportunity to obtain the privileges of voting upon their fulfilling their constitutional duties. He did not state, however, what form the opportunity would take. He then enumerated the fancy franchises, namely: a vote to every person who pays twenty shillings in direct tax, is in possession of fifty pounds in savings bank or funds, and to members of learned professions. He contradicted the statement that any possessor of four franchises would have a vote in addition to what he was entitled by reason of being a householder, and explained that the person who paid twenty shillings, either as income tax or assessed tax, but not taxed, had under the licences the privilege of both franchises. The Government proposed to reduce the county franchise to the fifteen pound rating. D'Israeli estimates that this scheme would add nearly one million voters in boroughs, and 300,000 in counties.

Mr. Gladstone severely criticized the scheme, declined to accept D'Israeli's figures, regarding three-fourths of the new voters as now in Buckram, denounced the Dual vote as a gigantic fraud, and expressed the opinion that the bill would never pass as a whole.

Mr. Lowe and other supporters of the Government opposed the bill.

The Liberal journals, including the Times, all consider there is little chance for the bill, and call for the abandonment of the Duality principle at once, that proposition alone being fatal to the whole scheme.

E. G. Squire, appointed to act as juror at the Paris exhibition, has been arrested on some liabilities in connection with his former inter-oceanic scheme, and was detained as a prisoner at Langaster Castle.

It is stated that the Pope agrees to allow Italian troops to enter his states to help the Pontifical troops to suppress brigandage. Antonelli opposed the proposition.

It is announced that the Emperor of Russia has extended amnesty to all Frenchmen exiled to Siberia for complicity in the Polish rebellion.

In the North German Parliament the amendment to the draft of a constitution providing for the freedom of the press and right of public meetings was rejected.

On the 21st, Mr. Gladstone called a meeting of the Liberal members of the House of Commons understood to agree on the course of opposition to the Governmen Reform bill.

VERA CRUZ IN A STATE OF SIEGE.

Fears that the Imperialists will Declare for Juarez.

NEW YORK, March 31.—Vera Cruz correspondence to March 15th states that Marshal Bazine and the rear guard of the French army, viz. the Egyptians, embarked on the 13th. More than half that corps, which originally numbered 3,000, remain under the soil of Mexico.

French flags of Mexico and a large quantity of war material were sold to the Imperialists by the French. The city was in a state of seige, martial law was declared, and the gates closed. It is feared the troops inside the city will pronounce for Juarez as soon as the Liberals appear in front of the walls.

All communication with the interior is cut off, and only news of a doubtful character is obtained from the Capitol.

It was rumored that Maximilian had agreed to abdicate if Juarez would consent to abide the decision of the people for or against the empire. but the rumor is not confirmed.

U. S. Supreme Court Meets To-day.

WASHINGTON, March 30, 1867.

IMPORTANT TREATY WITH RUSSIA.

The President sent to the Senate in Executive Session, on Saturday, a treaty with Russia, by which that power surrenders to the United States sovereighty over all Russian America and the adjacents islands. It especially includes the strip of four hundred miles long which extends down the coast, thus nearly excluding British America from the the ocean. The treaty was laid on the table, and will be taken up next week. The cession creates intense interest and influential parties regard it as significant of the Russian policy, in view of the impending European complications on the Eastern question. Russia cedes her American territory for the same reasons that induced Napoleon to sell Louisiana. In the event of war, Russia would probably lose this territory, and by parting with it the Czar secures the friendship of our Government. The English representative is deeply chagrined, and it is said Sir Frederick Bruce will telegraph to Earl Derby for instructions to protest against its acceptance by our Government. This acquisition more than doubles the United States coast on the Pacific.

Another dispatch, dated Washington, the 30th, says: It is true, as reported, that the President communicated to the Senate today a treaty with Russia, by which that power surrenders to the United States the sovereignty over all Russian America and adjacent islands. The price to be paid for this territory is about $7,000,000. The treaty was signed early this morning and sent to the Senate shortly afterward.

The Herald's Washington special says the Russia treaty was fully discussed in the Cabinet Council on Friday, and that evening the Russian Ambassador was received at the State Department, the negotiations being brought to a satisfactory conclusion at two o'clock Saturday morning. The treaty will have to be ratified by the Senate, and both Houses of Congress must concur in making an appropriation for the payment of the purchase money before the treaty is an accomplished fact.

EXTRA SESSION OF THE SENATE.

The President to-day issued the following, a copy of which was addressed to each Senator:

WHEREAS, Objects of interest to the United States require that the Senate should be convened at twelve o'clock on Monday, the first day of April next, to receive and act upon such communications as may be made to it, and on part of the Executive, now, therefore, I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, have considered it to be my duty to issue this, my proclamation, declaring that an extraordinary occasion requires the Senate of the United States to convene for the transaction of business, at the Capitol, in the city of Washington, on Monday, the first day of April next, at twelve o'clock on that day, of which all who shall at that time be entitled to act with that body are hereby required to take notice.

Given under my hand and seal of the United States, at Washington, this 30th day of March, in the year of our Lord, 1867, and of the Independence of the United States the Ninety-first.

[Signed.] ANDREW JOHNSON.
By the President,
WM. H. SEWARD, Secretary of the State.

NOMINATIONS CONFIRMED.

The Senate to-day confirmed the following nominations:

Collector of Internal Revenue: General James B. Steedman, of Ohio, First District Louisiana. Assessor of Internal Revenue: C. W. McLane, Tenth District, Illinois; Postmasters: William Cromwell, Bloomington, Illinois; Samuel G. Smith, Peru, Illinois. Register Land office: Nanthaniel Goss, Humboldt, Kansas. Receiver of Public Money: David Bemmert, Humboldt, Kansas. To be Colonel of United States Infantry, Captain Rainold McKenzie, of the Corps of Engineers. Collector of Customs: Jesse M. Harrison, Dubuque, Iowa.

NOMINATIONS REJECTED.

The Senate rejected the following: Brigadier General, by brevet, Brevet Colonel James B. Fry; Register of Land Office, A. S. Wadsworth, Traverse City, Michigan; Postmasters: John B. Rodgers, Verden, Illinois; John C. A. Young, Litchfield, Illinois; Mathew C. Pearce, Elkhart, Indiana.

MR. COLFAX RESUMES HIS PLACE.

Speaker Colfax was in the Chair to-day, his step-father having passed the crisis of his disease yesterday, and is now regarded out of danger.

BILLS SIGNED.

It is believed that all the bills which have passed the House have become laws by the President signing them.

WASHINGTON, March 31, 1867.

INTERNAL REVENUE RECEIPTS.

The receipts from Internal Revenue are more than two hundred and fourteen millions of dollars, since the first of July, '66, that is for three-fourths of the year. It is said in official sources that there is no good reason for supposing the revenue from this source will fall below the estimates. In fact it is confidentially believed it will exceed them. The income tax is yet to be collected, and, according to the provision of the amendatory act of the second instant, will be collected by the 30th of April. The condition of this branch of national revenue is encouraging, notwithstanding the depression that at first sight would seem to threaten a serious deficit.

MONUMENT ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED.

The National Lincoln Monument Association has been organized, with Senator Harlan as President, and Hon. James M. Edmunds as Secretary, Hon. Burt Van Horn and Frederick Douglass as managers on the part of New York; Hon. John A. Andrew, Massachusetts; Hon. Schuyler Colfax and Hon. Sidney Perham, Missouri; Hon. Shellabarger, Ohio; Bishop Simpson, Pennsylvania; and John Conness, California. It is proposed to erect a monument in the city of Washington commemorative of the great charter of emancipation and universal liberty in America. Contributions are to be forwarded to Gen. Spinner, United States Treasurer.

LOOKING AFTER APPOINTMENTS.

A number of members of the House will remain in Washington during the executive session of the Senate to look after the appointment of Federal officers in their several Congressional districts. It is supposed the session will continue for a week or ten days.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

The United States Supreme Court will resume its session to-morrow. All the judges are expected to be present, with the exception of Justice Grier, whose health is still feeble.

LARGE FIRE AT ST. LOUIS.

The Lindell Hotel Destroyed.

LOSS OVER A MILLION AND A HALF.

ST. LOUIS, March 31.—The Lindell Hotel, the largest building of its kind on this continent, if not in the world, was totally destroyed by fire last night. There is a good deal of mystery about the origin of the fire but the most reliable accounts are that it broke out in one of the west front rooms, in the fifth story, about half-past eight o'clock, but the alarm was not sounded till after nine o'clock. At this time the fire was confined to two rooms, on that floor, but owing to the extreme height of the building, and the difficulty of reaching the locality with hose, it gradually ascended till it broke through the sixth and seventh stories and reached the roof near the northwest corner of the building. From this point the fire rapidly extended underneath the roof across the entire width of the hotel, to the East Sixth street front, and then moved rapidly downward till the whole structure was enveloped in flames. Up to the time the fire spread across the building, it was the general belief that the lower part of the building would be saved; but as soon as the flames reached the elevators and inner courts, through which strong currents of air rushed, the fire received a new and powerful impetus, and all hope of staying the devouring element was lost. The efforts of the firemen were not relaxed, however, and the full force of the fire department was put forth until three o'clock, at which time all the inner work was consumed and a considerable portion of the walls had fallen, and what was once the stateliest, most imposing and handsome hotel in the country, was a mass of crumbling, blackened ruins.

The building was owned by the estate of Henry Ames & Co., Edward Ames being the representative of the property. Its original cost was a little over $900,000, and was bought by Ames & Co. in December, 1863, two months after it was opened, for $373,000. The insurance on the hotel amounts to $310,000, of which $70,000 to $80,000 is in eastern companies, mainly New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia.

The lessees were Hatch, Weaver & Felt, whose loss on furniture and stores is about $300,000; insured for $100,000. But little of the furniture was saved.

There were about four hundred guests in the hotel, a large number of whom consisted of families boarding in the house. The latter lost most of their personal effects, owing to the excitement prevailing, and the disbelief that the house would be destroyed until it was too late to remove them. The loss from this source will probably reach $100,000.

The goods in the stores underneath the hotel were almost totally destroyed, although there was abundant time to save them. The loss is probably $50,000.

The total loss by the disaster will scarcely be less than $1,600,000. A list of the losing companies will be given as soon as obtained.

The fire was seen a distance of twenty-seven miles from the city. Mr. Ames says he shall not rebuild the hotel, but a number of prominent citizens have taken the matter in hand, and exertions will be made to effect its reconstruction.

The following is a partial list of Mr. Ames' insurance on the Lindell Hotel:

Ten thousand each in the Phoenix and Lorillard, New York Insurance Companies; North America, Philadelphia; Commerce, of Albany, and $10,000 each in the following St. Louis offices: Marine, Globe, Citizens, Atlantic, United States, St. Louis, Mound City, Missouri, State Mutual, Home, Pacific. Hatch, Weaver, Felt & Company, had the following among other insurances on furniture: $5,000 each in the Continental, Washington, Jefferson, St. Louis, Excelsior; $10,000 in the Pacific, National, Mississippi Valley, all St. Louis offices, and $5,000 in Ætna, of Hartford.

This fire is the most serious calamity that has befallen St. Louis since the great fire of 1849, and is a matter of universal regret and sorrow. The value of the surrounding property has already depreciated ten to twenty per cent., and if the hotel is not rebuilt this depreciation will be felt for a distance of many blocks.

Another revolution at Hayti is reported, headed by Propero Elie and son. The Elies were killed and tranquility ensued. Another account, without date, says that Geffard was defeated, and fled in a French war vessel to Jamaica, which the Havana Diario says is from a trustworthy source.

A Mysterious Affair in New York.

NEW YORK, March 31st.—A mysterious affair, involving a supposed murder and disappearance of a prominent physician, is attracting the attention of the police. On Friday night a physician, who is attached to the board of health, reported at the station house that a woman had just met her death by violent means, and that three men, whose actions were suspicious, were at a place designated. The police visited the place but no corpse or men were found and the doctor himself not since seen.

Judgment Day in the Criminal Court.

Not much in the way of sentencing persons for deeds done in violation of the law, of which they had been tried and adjudged guilty, transpired in the Criminal Court on Saturday. Judges Sterrett and Mellon were on the bench, Judge Stowe continuing indisposed from rheumatism. There was a full attendance of members of the bar, the larger portion having business, but quite a number were present to hear the result of the conference of the Judges upon the memorial asking uniformity in court hours or daily sessions. The decision is announced elsewhere.

AN ARRAY OF PRISONERS.

The prisoners' dock or box was of insufficient capacity to afford accommodation for the prisoners brought out by Warden White, seven in number, to receive sentence. Five occupied the box, T. W. Flanner, Casper Felber, Fred. Umberger, Peter Crowley and Charles Koninecamp, and Theodore Parker Lyman and Ann Krugh were given seats outside. All except Flanner and Koninecamp were convicted of larceny, the crimes of which they are convicted being forgery and fornication. The array were disposed of in this order:

THE OFFENDING SWISS.

Casper Felber is the unfortunate young Swiss, whose case we have reported. He took from John Reigner, a fellow boarder, in South Pittsburgh, a pocket-book containing some thirty dollars, disposing of the money, according to his own confession, in the payment of sundry small debts and a little jollification in an Allegheny beer hall. Intercession in his behalf saved him from the Penitentiary. The punishment imposed, two months in the county jail, is remarkably light, and it is to be hoped Felber will hereafter sustain the good character which it was stated he bore prior to committing the offense.

FOR TAKING AN OVERCOAT.

This was Peter Crowley's offense, according to the testimony of George Wessell. The Court was prevailed upon to be lenient, giving him four months in the county jail.

CASE POSTPONED.

Ann Krugh was next called. She is the German woman, who, in leaving the employ (as a domestic) of John A. Erbe, of Scott township, took with her some household articles, and also a pocket-book containing money. Prior or shortly subsequent to the larceny, she got married, and the Court, from representations made by the jail physician, declined passing sentence for the present.

PROBABLE ARRANGEMENT.

Charles Koninecamp is the young man tried last week for affiliation, on complaint of Catherine Donaldson. The child in the case is fatherless under the verdict, the jury having found nothing more than that the accused had not lawfully associated with the prosecutrix. It being understood that the difficulty was likely to be settled by a wedding, Charles was remanded for the time being.

THE TWICE TRIED.

Theodore Parker Lyman, tried at last December term for larceny, and re-arrested on the day he was acquitted, who failed in being discharged by habeas corpus, and who was convicted on Friday last, notwithstanding his special plea of "former trial and acquittal," was sixth on the list. A motion for a new trial having been made, on some technical ground, he was remanded until it could be disposed of. The counsel for this prisoner having by technical points so far delayed justice being meted out to him, deserve to have their efforts rewarded by his release, were it not for the objection that the community might suffer thereby.

AN OLD STORY.

A long time since we heard the story of a man who picked up on the highway a rope and was astonished when he reached home to find a horse attached to one end of it. Frederick Umberger, a German past middle age, was convicted of the larceny of a watch from George Trieas. He could not speak English, but was made to understand by Justice Arent that he was about to be sentenced. He made a statement which was interpreted, to the effect that he desired a piece of black ribbon to put round his hat, and coming across such an article, he took it, but found attached a watch, which thus passed into his possession; and which he had no opportunity of relinquishing before he was arrested. About as improbable a story as that about the rope, for it appears that the watch was in the prosecutor's vest pocket, in his bed room, in which the accused also slept. Giving credit for his alleged "mistake," the Court sentenced the prisoner to the penitentiary for one year.

THE FORGERY CASE.

T. W. Flanner was convicted of uttering a forged bill of exchange for $475, with intent to defraud Joseph Dilworth. Counsel for defense, A. G. Cochran, Esq., moved for a new trial, on the ground, principally, that the verdict was not justified by the evidence. It is claimed there was not sufficient proof that the instrument was forged, and hence the fact of uttering it amounted to nothing. The only evidence adduced as to the forgery was the defendant's admission that he had got into some difficulty, and that the bill of exchange was returned from New York. It was contended there were but two ways of proving a forgery, by the admission of the accused that it was a forgery, and by proof of the forgery itself by persons familiar with the signature. Proof that the bill had been returned protested was sufficient in a commercial transaction or in a civil case, but not so in a criminal case. The accused at the time he was arrested insisted that the bill was "all right," and nothing so far had been developed to justify the conclusion that it was a forgery. His expression that he had got himself into trouble, and that he must have been insane, did not necessarily imply guilt. Mr. Cochran stated that the prisoner maintained his innocence, was respectably connected in St. Louis, and averred that if opportunity were given he could demonstrate himself guiltless. Upon the strength of this statement the case was postponed for two weeks.

Consumptives Read.

Statement of George Ford, carpenter, of No. 15 Sampson street, Allegheny: "I had pleurisy in May, 1866, which left me with a cough which lasted all summer, and was gradually wasting away my strength. I had several doctors who treated my case for pleurisy. I left the city after I recovered from the pleurisy and went to the country. I then called in a doctor who told me my left lung was affected, and that if something were not done soon, I would die of consumption. I lingered on from this time. About the middle of June my cough and lung disease gradually became worse, and I got weaker every day, and almost despaired of ever getting well. In this state of despondency, and knowing the general belief of the incurability of consumption, I had heard of cures made by Dr. Keyser, and seeing his advertisement in the newspapers, I was induced in October last to call on the Doctor at his office, 120 Penn street, and had him examine my lungs with his "Lung Sound." He told me the upper lobe of my left lung was very much diseased, but he thought with great care and perseverance in the use of his medicines I would get well. At the time I called on Dr. Keyser my pulse was over one hundred and thirty beats in a minute, and I was generally prostrated and had to cough night and day. I commenced the Doctor's treatment in October, with a feeble, broken constitution and continued it faithfully until the present time. The Doctor's medicines helped me from the very start, and I could gradually feel myself getting stronger and my cough and expectoration lessening. I have gained greatly in flesh and consider myself well; all the rattling of my lung has ceased, and my general health is in every way good. All my relatives and friends know of the advanced stage of my disease and my extraordinary recovery. One of the medicines given me by Dr. Keyser was a medicine called LUNG CURE, which I took in connection with the other treatment.
GEORGE FORD."

Singular enough, each have faith in escaping the penalty of their crimes through Executive clemency.

M'Callum Brothers' New Carpet House, No. 51 Fifth Street.

Few of our readers, doubtless, have failed to notice the magnificent new iron building just erected at 51 Fifth street, by the well known carpet dealers Messrs. M'Callum Brothers. The structure is as fine a specimen of building as any ever put up in this city, and compares more than favorably with the elegant iron front business houses in its neighborhood. The style of architecture is quite plain, but the absence of ornamentation is fully made up in the solid and neat appearance of the massive pillars and columns which support the front of the building. It is four stories high, and forms quite a conspicuous feature on our chief thoroughfare. On Saturday we had the pleasure of examining the interior of the house, at least the large portion occupied by the Messrs. M'Callum. The basement is a well fitted salesroom running the full depth of the building, to an alley. At the rear, doorways are opened, and here the original packages of goods received by the firm are opened. Much of the packing and shipping is also done here, having egress for drays and wagons from that point. The business of the main portion of the store is not interfered with, and customers are never annoyed by accumulations of packages at the Fifth street door. The basement in day time is lighted from sky-lights of heavy glass on the first floor, and by windows at the front and rear. In this department will be found a very large assortment of oil cloths of the latest patterns and in all sizes, domestic and plain carpets, rugs, stair carpets, &c., &c. We might mention a novel hoisting apparatus we observed here for elevating goods to the upper stories. It is a large box or basket of stout timber, suspended by strong rope, and which has a counterpoise of its own weight upon the other side of a partition which extends from basement to roof. The basket moves upon grooves, and but little manual labor is required to hoist any amount of weight. This hoisting apparatus we believe is peculiar only to this house, and is worthy of examination. There are a pair of broad winding stairs which leads to the main salesroom from the basement. The stairs, floors, doors and indeed the larger portion of the wood work in the basement and the first floor is of butternut or white walnut. This is rare timber and we believe no other house in the city, and very few in the country, has adopted it so largely in its interior arrangements. The wood is very beautiful, presenting a rich and uncommon appearance. The first floor devoted to fine carpetings and general goods is a perfect model of neatness and plain elegance. The ceilings are quite high, and are of narrow slats of wood painted a virgin white and highly varnished. The entrance to the store from Fifth street is through a double door, between two massive show windows. The panes of glass in the latter are the largest in the city, being thirteen feet high and five feet wide. They are exquisite specimens of French plate, and add much to the outside appearance of the building. The side lights in the front windows are also the same quality and same dimensions in length, but only three feet in width. As you enter from the street, this magnificent salesroom will impress you as something remarkably odd, as there is nothing tawdry or ill selected about its appointments. Everything about it is plain and yet of the best quality of workmanship, and richest of mechanical materials. On either side of the large room, which is one hundred and fifty feet deep, are erected cases or shelving for carpets, rugs, matting, curtains, covers, &c., &c. About the centre there is an arch running the remaining length of the building, which is thirty-three feet high. On either side of this are side lights, which flood that part of the room with light suitable for the proper display and selection of carpets. The light thus obtained is much superior to that received from old fashioned sky-lights being equally disseminated and neither glaring nor too strong. There are on this floor seven bronze chandaliers dependent from the ceiling for use at night. These, too, are plain but rich looking. But we feel to attempt any further description of this really elegant saleroom would be folly upon our part, and we urge upon our readers to pay this store a visit, and thus enable themselves to speak knowingly of a store in which all should have a local pride.

McCallum Brothers have long and successfully been engaged in their line of business in this city. They have succeeded in building up a large trade in this and the adjoining States, and are continually increasing it. Possessing the very best facilities for the importation of foreign carpets and purchase of home manufactures, they are at all times in position to compete favorably with their neighbors. Their stock on hands at the present time, is very large and has been selected with great good care and judgment. We were shown a large number of new patterns which have just made their appearance in this country of Velvet carpets, Brussels, and tapestrie Brussels, which are really elegant, and would do credit to the luxurious palace of a king, or what is grander, the cabin of a Southern steamboat. These are not held at very high prices and we cannot well imagine why the floor of every parlor should not be covered with some one of those magnificent coverings. The Ingrain carpeting is also very fine and many charming new patterns have been introduced.

Beautiful stair carpets, matting, mats, oil baizes, mosquito cover, &c., &c., will also be found in all the modern styles, at very inviting prices. The stock of mosaic rugs and mats is splendid, and some of the specimens are so fine as to rival oil paintings in beauty and finish. The firm makes a specialty in oil cloths and have a very large stock of the best quality on hand, in every conceivable style and pattern, and of all sizes. Window shades, tapestries, stair rods, and every thing usually kept in similar first class houses will be found in this establishment, at advantageous prices. The different departments are well kept and a number of polite and accommodating salesmen are constantly in attendance to wait upon those who may call. In conclusion we commend this house to the patronage of our numerous readers knowing that its business is systematically conducted, and that no where else can better goods be obtained, at more favorable prices.

Amusements.

NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Miss Emily Mellville, whose traveling stock consists in a very pretty face and person, a large store of mirth and playfulness, and moderate ability as an actress, closed her first week's engagement at the Opera House on Saturday evening, to an immense audience, in the "Hidden Hand" and "Mountain Maid." In the latter her acting was very clever and she was ably supported. Minnie Cooke, a lady who would rapidly win favor if she were assigned more important characters, sustained "Dame Glib" in a charming manner, and won the hearty applause of the audience. As "Swig" Harry Hotto made a decided hit. He is quite versatile, and surprised the audience with his exhibition of agility in climbing the tree—the prominent part of the farce. Mr. Crossen, a very clever actor, appeared to advantage as "Walter," although the part was very light.

VARIETIES THEATRE.—Manager Meyers is nightly drawing immense houses at this respectable and first-class place of amusement. Since assuming the management he has wonderfully changed the character of the place, and has made it as unobjectionable as the Opera House or any other place of amusement. The engagement of Miss Florence Temple, with her marvellous steed "Fire-Fly," has been, thus far, more than successful, hundreds being turned away from the doors nightly, unable to obtain admittance. She will enter upon the second week of her engagement to-night, upon which occasion a rare bill is offered.

Mayor Morrison in a New Role.

Two young men named George Blair and William Simpson caused quite an excitement on Federal street, Allegheny, yesterday afternoon, by a display of rowdyism in in front of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad depot. Mayor Morrison, happening to be in the vicinity, importuned the noisy twain to observe a little decorum. His counsel was disregarded, however, whereupon His Honor determined to accomplish by physical force what moral suasion had failed to do, and forthwith proceeded to arrest them both. A scuffle ensued in which Blair effected his escape, but the valiant representative of justice clung to Simpson with a tenacity that nothing could shake off and the latter found a lodging in the lock-up, where this morning he doubtless paid for his conduct in the shape of $10 and costs. Too much praise cannot be bestowed on His Honor for his courageous conduct on this occasion. For once in the memory of the dignitary mentioned, has the "quiet" of our sister community been disturbed.

Jewelry.

The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of Messrs. Johnston & Scott, jewelers, No. 274 Liberty street, to be found in another column. This firm is well and favorably known to our citizens, and any commendation that we might bestow upon them would therefore be superfluous. But to strangers visiting our city, who never had the pleasure of transacting business with them, we would say that their establishment is first class in every particular, their stock of gold and silver watches, rings, and every variety of jewelry, being as large and complete as that of any other house in the city, while the members of the firm are courtesy and affability personified. If you wish anything in their line do not fail to give them a call.

Special Meeting.—There will be a special meeting of the Pittsburgh Councils held in their rooms in the city building this evening, to take into consideration the bill in relation to the the tax on gas, now pending in the Legislature.

Probable Infanticide—Remains of a Child Found in a Graveyard.

Yesterday afternoon, while a couple of gentlemen were walking through the Methodist burial ground, in the Seventh ward, they discovered a spice box some eighteen inches long lying in a grave from which a corpse had been exhumed a few weeks since. Their notice was attracted to the box by a piece of towel that protruded between the lid and the side, and this aroused their suspicion as to the contents. The box was raised and opened, when the full developed remains of a female child were found, but slightly decomposed. Though there were no marks upon the body, its death was doubtless one of violence. Its limbs were swathed in a coarse towel and cotton handerchief, which were the only wrappings the box contained. A little girl, living in the neighborhood of the graveyard, saw two men placing a package or parcel in the grave where the body was discovered early on Friday night, and called her mother's attention to the circumstance at the time, but the old lady paid no heed to the matter and had almost forgotten it, until the discovery of yesterday. The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of W. H. Devore, on Grant street, where Coroner Clawson will hold an inquest on it this morning at eleven o'clock.

Meeting of the Iron Workers.

On Saturday afternoon a large meeting of the Iron Workers of this city and vicinity was held at Boilers' Union Hall, corner of Smithfield and Fifth streets, for the purpose of taking into consideration the present difficulty between the proprietors of the different rolling mills and their former employees, with regard to the proposed reduction in the wages of the latter. A statement had been going the rounds that certain mills would resume work to-day at the prices fixed by the manufacturers. This was contradicted by the chairman of the meeting, and after the passage of the following preamble and resolution the meeting adjourned.

"WHEREAS, A struggle has been existing between the Iron Workers and Manufacturers for the last three months; and, WHEREAS, The said manufacturers still persist in a reduction of twenty-five per cent.; therefore be it

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that the said reduction is unwarranted and uncalled for, and that we will not accede to the demand, being firm in the conviction that it is unnecessary and unjust."

Notwithstanding the statements made above, the majority of the mills will probably begin operations to-day, and from present appearances the "lock out" is at an end.

Resolutions.

At a meeting held by the teachers of the Sandusky Street School, Fourth ward, Allegheny City, on Friday evening, March 29th 1867, the following resolutions in reference to the resignation of the Principal, Prof. T. E. Wakeham, were passed:

Resolved, That we deeply regret the loss of one so well qualified to fill the position of Principal in our schools.

Resolved, That he has ably and conscienciously discharged the duties incumbent upon him as our instructor, and that we as fellow-teachers fully appreciate his efforts to render our labors pleasant and effective.

Resolved, That we have found him a gentleman of high intellectual capability and scholastic attainments, and every way worthy the confidence and patronage of the public as an educator, and that we bespeak for him all success in the new enterprise upon which he has entered.

An Alarmist in Limbo.

James Mullen resides in the Second ward, Allegheny. About midnight on Saturday he happened to be on Craig street, where he became possessed with a desire to create some amusement for himself. Believing that his object could only be accomplished by shocking the nervous denizens of that locality, he seated himself on a doorstep and, as loud as his capacious lungs would permit, cried "fire!" The cry was taken up and repeated by several persons in the neighborhood, among whom was an old lady, who, loving versatility, changed the shout to that of "watch." In a few moments officer Campbell was on the spot, and tracing the alarm to its source, he took James under escort to the tombs, from which he was liberated yesterday morning on the payment of a fine of $5. The defence offered was that he only shouted for fun, but the expense of the entertainment will doubtless prevent a second performance.

Felonious Assault.

G. Ludewig, brother of the proprietor of the Franklin Billiard Saloon, on Fifth street, appeared before Alderman Strain, on Saturday, and made oath charging Charles Collin, Henry Dignam and Thomas Brown with felonious assault and battery on the person of a German, named Albeitz. The latter was employed as a waiter in the saloon and was attending to his duty when the trio, mentioned above, began quarreling at one of the tables. He requested them to preserve order when a difficulty ensued, which terminated in Albeitz being knocked down with a tumbler and beaten to such an extent that he was insensible for several hours after the melee. Drs. Umbstaetter and McCook attended to the injured man and dressed his wounds. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the persons accused.

House Painting.

The season of painting is with us, and everywhere the brush is being applied to rejuvenate the soot-stained houses. But our purpose here is not to go into ecstacies over the process of making our city look young, but to say a few words of the house and sign painting establishment of Mr. John T. Gray, No. 54 Hand street. By close attention to business and careful execution of all jobs entrusted to him, Mr. Gray has made a high reputation in this community as a practical painter. We can speak with considerable knowledge of his merits and claims upon the public patronage, having executed several large contracts of house painting for us in the most creditable manner, and in a style which gave complete satisfaction. He uses nothing but the best qualities of paints, oils and varnishes, and employes none but experienced workmen. We commend Mr. Gray to the patronage of our readers. See his card elsewhere.

Original Freshness and Beauty.

Being one of the first in this neighborhood who purchased a Steinway Piano, (some nine years ago,) I am happy to be able to state that our admiration for the instrument has undergone no change in the lapse of years. We are now as much delighted by its rich melodious tones as on the day we brought it here, and can conscientiously testify to their unrivaled capacity for retaining for many years the original freshness and beauty of sound which characterizes them above all others. We have never regretted its purchase.

ALEXANDER CAMERON.

Mr. Cameron was Cashier of the Mechanics Bank of Allegheny City, and purchased his Steinway from our friends, H. Kleber & Bro.

Shocking Accident.

A shocking accident occurred at Lock No. 2, (Port Perry) on the Monongahela, on Saturday, to Patrick Monahan, while under the influence of liquor. He had accompanied a sister on board the steamer Elisha Bennett, upward bound, and while standing on the lock, watching the boat go out, he lost his equilibrium, and falling between the wall and the boat, at the wheelhouse, was crushed to death before he could be rescued. Deceased was about thirty-five years of age, lived at Port Perry, and leaves a wife and four children in indigent circumstances, for whom a collection was taken up after the accident, and the sum of eighty dollars contributed.

An Efficient Officer.—No doubt much of the success of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is in a measure due to the courteous and gentlemanly conductors it employs. During our recent visit to the east, we had the pleasure of travelling with that popular and agreeable gentleman, Conductor Story. He has the tact of making everybody feel comfortable around him, answering all questions pleasantly and politely. We congratulate the Company upon the possession of so efficient an officer, believing him to be the right man in the right place.

Moving Time.—Moving time is suggestive of the accurate time pieces in the way of gold and silver watches, of home and foreign manufacture, to be found in large variety at the popular jewelry establishment of Reineman, Meyran & Siedle, No. 25 Fifth street. An elegant assortment of English regulators, cuckoo clocks and other desirable plain and fancy goods in this line, offered at the most reasonable prices. For any article of jewelry call at this house.

Death of a Printer.—Michael O'Halloran, a well known printer, died on Saturday, of consumption, at the Soldiers' Home, in the Ninth ward, to which institution he was taken some four weeks since. He served three years during the war in the Ninth Pennsylvania Reserves. His funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock from No. 22 Water street, and his remains be interred in Allegheny cemetery. His age was 33 years.

Postmaster McClelland takes charge of the Postoffice to-day.

Woman Injured—A German lady named Henrietta Schad fell from a porch in Hoveler's Court, in the Eighth ward, yesterday afternoon and received very serious injuries. She had been leaning over the balustrade calling to some children at play beneath, when it gave way. Her right shoulder is dislocated, while her attending physician, Dr. Herron, fears that she has received internal injuries of a serious character. Late last evening she was still very ill.

An Alleged Deserter from the 19th United States Infantry, named Daniel Green, was arrested by officer William Bowden, of Allegheny, whilst sleeping in a brick-kiln, in the suburbs, on Saturday morning. He was delivered to Capt. H. Hannen, and committed to jail by him until Tuesday morning.

A Call.—Rev. C. E. Swope, D. D., Rector of Trinity Church, this city, has received a unanimous call to become an assistant minister in charge of Trinity Chapel, New York, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the recent election of Rev. Dr. Neely to the Bishopric of Maine. Dr. S. has not yet decided to accept the call.

Committed.—Rudolph and Robert Druesdor, charged with stealing brass from the Ardesco Oil Works, were arrested by officer Hague, on Saturday, and brought before Alderman Strain. They were committed in default of the requisite bail.

New Paper.—The Advocate, devoted to the interests of the workingmen, will appear this afternoon. Those interested will find it an up-hill business running a paper. The "capitalists" have had quite enough experience in that line.

The Lost Found.—Elizabeth McCune, aged sixteen, who it was found was abducted from Altoona, and for whom active search was made, turned up in the Sixth ward on Saturday, and was taken charge of by her friends.

Will Meet.—The annual session of the Pittsburgh Presbytery of the Reformed Presbyterian church, will commence on Wednesday morning, at eleven o'clock, in the First Church, Sandusky street, Allegheny City.

Terrible.—A German named Henry Lange, and his two sons, were scalded to death last Saturday in Philadelphia, by a large kettle of boiling water, used for scalding hogs, upsetting upon them.

Arch-Bishop Purcell, of Cincinnati, lectured last evening upon "Charity" to an overcrowded audience, in St. Paul's Cathedral. It was a clear, able and eloquent effort.

Mr. James M'Steen, a well known and highly respected citizen, died yesterday afternoon, at two o'clock. He was engaged in the plumbing and gas fitting business.

There will, in all probability, be more dwellings put up in this city and vicinity during the coming summer than in the three seasons that have preceeded it.

The Printers' Union just now stands in need of "Costar's Exterminator," else the interests of its members will suffer before the close of the week.

Drunkenness.—Yesterday we observed an unusual number of drunken men upon the streets. Where they obtained their beverage we know not.

Light.—The income returns thus far have been very light. Our heavy men will not turn up large cards this year, as their profits have been very small.

Three Card Ambrotypes of a young lady were picked up by our itemizer on St. Clair street. She can obtain them by calling.

MONDAY, APRIL 1, 1867.

RUSSIA has entered into a treaty agreeing, upon the payment to her of $7,000,000, to cede to the United States all her American possessions. Threatened European complications are alleged as the cause moving thereto.

GEN. CAMERON started an inquiry into the compensation paid the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company for transportation during the war. The resolution was amended to include the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Northern Central. The inquiry is addressed to the Secretary of War.

THE Pennsylvania Railroad Company has bought, and is now in possession of, the Columbus and Indiana Central Railroad. This gives that Company a continuous line from Philadelphia to Indianapolis. The bargaining for the Pacific Railroad of Missouri has already been commenced. That concluded, it will remain to acquire the line from Indianapolis, through Terre Haute and Alton to St. Louis, and then the Company will control a line extending from Philadelphia to the western terminus of the Eastern Division of the Union Pacific, wherever that may be. There is a grandeur approaching audacity in the courage, skill and enterprise that projects and grapples with undertaking of this magnitude.

CONSOLIDATION.

On Saturday we published the essential sections of a bill now pending before the Legislature to consolidate with Pittsburgh all the municipalities lying contiguous thereto. If this bill shall become a law the legal voters embraced within the described boundaries will, at the State election, to be held on the second Tuesday of next October, decide by ballot whether the scheme shall be accepted or rejected. It will be observed, however, that the voters of each municipality have not the right to decide whether it shall go in or stay out. The main question will be put, Shall consolidation stand or fall? If a majority of the qualified electors residing within the proposed boundaries, accept the bill, that will be the end of the matter.

This movement is certainly deserving of serious consideration. The time will come when consolidation cannot be deferred. The necessities of the case will compel it. As we look at the subject the only real question is, Has the time arrived? Of course, there are cogent suggestions to be urged on both sides. Into that discussion, we do not intend at this time to enter.

The framers of the bill estimate the population enclosed in the proposed boundaries at 176,000. This estimate is based upon the number of votes polled at the last general election, which is not an exact criterion, though it helps to an approximation. The vote in Allegheny county last fall was no larger than the year before; but there were 7,200 more taxables on the lists, indicating largely increased population. Two-thirds of the increase was in the districts covered by this Consolidation bill. It might fairly be assumed, therefore, that the aggregate population directly interested in this measure, is not much if any short of 200,000.

THE MARCH OF EVENTS.

If a man had predicted one year ago that by this time the blacks throughout eleven of the Southern States would possess the right of suffrage, and on the same conditions as the whites, he would have been reputed an enthusiast, in whom the fervor of desire had overpowered the inculcations of reason. At that time there were, indeed, signs betokening the ultimate full enfranchisement of the colored race, but they were so indistinct as to be perceived only by those magnetic spirits who derive intelligence as largely through their intuitions as through their understandings. Since then the current of events has been quickened. Unlooked for causes have come into operation, and conspired with those previously at work, to hasten the consummation. In periods of national ferment a day not unfrequently counts for as much as a year in ordinary times.

While the blacks have acquired the ballot at the South, a sensitiveness has been developed at the North about approaching the matter in a practical way. In two or three of the State Legislatures into which proposals for granting suffrage to the blacks have been introduced there has not only been hesitancy, but actual refusal.

In the Pennsylvania Legislature no movement has been made looking to a change in the Constitution in this particular, and for the plain reason that by the words of the organic law it is not permissible this year. A proposition was submitted for a Constitutional Convention, and the desirableness of this particular alteration was assigned as the reason therefor. It may be that some or many of the Republican members deemed the movement premature, or were opposed to it entirely. No debate or division has occurred elucidating this point. But this may be assumed, that the ordinary run of men who get into legislative bodies are not wiser in their day and generation than tens of thousands who do not get there; nor more courageous in dealing with questions which involve the possible contingency of temporary unpopularity.

It must farther be observed that the powers of a Constitutional Convention are very broad, reaching to every part of the great instrument. If such a Convention should be convened in this Commonwealth during the current year it is not conceivable its attention would be restricted entirely or mainly to the qualifications for voting. The tenure of the Judges, the manner of granting corporate franchises, and other points of scarcely less interest, would be sure to come under consideration. It is clear, therefore, that other motives than an unwillingness to face the question of extending the right to vote to the blacks, have contributed to shove the issue aside.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, a few days before the adjournment, introduced into the Senate a bill to regulate suffrage throughout the United States by extending the right to all male citizens of adult age, and on equal terms. He was doubtless moved to this step by general principles; as, also, through a reasonable fear, that in the absence of a provision of this sort, the Seceding States, directly upon readmission, would once more revise their respective Constitutions, and in a way to exclude blacks from voting.

Mr. WM. D. KELLEY, in an elaborate speech, made on this topic in February, held, that the power of Congress in the premises, as the Constitution originally stood, was ample, and he fortified this position by an interpretation of that instrument, and by citing the opinions of Mr. MADISON and other men of his class and day. But the opinions of statesmen contemporaneous with a particular enactment or who actually drafted and aided in giving it the force of law, are of no practical account. It does not matter what they intended to provide, or supposed they had provided. The material thing is to see what meaning the words they employed really expressed. This is the accepted rule of interpretation, and no other is admissible. Now, the fact is the Constitutional provision was construed the other way by every State of the Union, and Congress never thought of challenging the legitimacy of the construction. Such unanimity is not easily set at naught.

But Mr. WILSON rests his bill on other grounds than those advanced by Mr. KELLEY. In a preamble he recites the pending Amendment, to the effect that all persons born or naturalized in the United States are citizens thereof, and of any State in which they may reside, and that no State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens. He proceeds, therefore, on the assumption that voting is an inalienable prerogative of citizenship. Two difficulties beset this view; one, so to speak, extrinsic, and the other intrinsic.

The Constitutional Amendment has not yet been duly ratified. At least the Secretary of State has not proclaimed the ratification of it; and until that formality shall be observed the Amendment must be held as though it was not. Mr. WILSON holds that the consent of three-fourths of the States actually participating in the Government is sufficient to change the organic law. We concur in that judgment. But it so happens that the views of neither or both of us settle the point. It is quite probable we shall be compelled to wait till a number of the Seceding States, under the impulse imparted to them by the Military Government Act, give their assent.

But, Mr. WILSON's interpretation of the Amendment proves too much, if it proves anything. Women and children are citizens as well as men. Any lawyer will tell him that, if he is not already connusant of the fact. Among legists there is no diversity of opinion on that head. If, therefore, the Amendment, when ratified, gives the ballot to the blacks, it gives it to females and minors. Mr. WILSON may be willing to accept the doctrine and discipline of female voting. If we are not mistaken, in a late speech he so said. But, we think he will hesitate long before clothing infants with the ballot.

But voting is not the only "privilege or immunity" of citizenship. Officeholding is in the same category. Does Mr. WILSON contemplate making blacks everywhere eligible to office? will he include women and children also? Now, it is one thing to declare a person eligible to office, and quite another for him to get elected thereto. Eligibility depends upon the law; election upon the will of the voters. A good many white male citizens, try the best they can every year to get into office, and signally fail. Hence the matter of eligibility is of small practical consequence. We raise the point to ascertain if Mr. WILSON has thoroughly considered the matter, and is prepared to follow his own logic to its natural results. Also, to show with what carelessness the most important papers are drawn by what in courtesy is denominated "the assembled wisdom of the nation."

MR BINGHAM, in his altercation with Gen. BUTLER, in the House of Representatives, made a pungent allusion to the failure to take Fort Fisher. Col. LAMB, who commanded in that Fort, has, within a few days, made the annexed statement:

> "If I were a friend of Gen. Butler, I could tell him facts which would prove that he did perfectly right in not attacking Fort Fisher when he was before the place. My battery of nineteen guns so commanded the land approach that not a man could have lived to reach my works. It was only after the navy had, with beautiful precision, dismounted gun after gun in regular order, (at the second attempt), leaving only one in place, that the attacking party had any chance of success. General Butler has been much abused for not accomplishing impossibilities."

This goes far to corroborate Gen. BUTLER's modest affirmation, "I did the best I could."

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER of repute, now on our table, contains twelve articles purporting to be editorial, of which nine were taken bodily from our columns. To a certain extent we do not mind being poached upon. On a low average we submit to it fifty times each week, content with an occasional acknowledgment. But wholesale appropriation, and no credit whatever, is slightly annoying.

GEORGE R. RIDDLE, U. S. Senator for Delaware, died at Washington on Friday. He was born at New Castle in 1817; educated at Delaware College; followed surveying; was engaged for years in locating canals and roads in Pennsylvania; was in the House of Representatives from 1851 to 1855; and in 1864 went into the Senate as successor to Mr. BAYARD.

OUR HARRISBURG CORRESPONDENT last week referred to charges of drunkenness and indecent conduct having been made against General Fisher, Senator from Lancaster county, by the Harrisburg Patriot and Union. That gentleman has been fully vindicated by the Senate committee appointed to investigate the charges, at his own request.

THE people of New York and Michigan are engaged in selecting members of Conventions to revise their respective Constitutions. It may well be expected that some radical changes will be made in both. In Pennsylvania the Republican members of the Legislature refuse the people a chance to do a like service upon their organic law.

AS SOON as the Executive session of the Senate shall end Col. FORNEY will go to Europe specially to witness the Paris Exposition. As a portrayer of men and things he has no superior among the journalists of this country. Hence, admirable specimens of pen-painting may be expected in the Press.

ON Saturday we neglected to say that the First Cumberland Presbyterian church, the Rev. E. K. SQUIRE, pastor, has been holding a series of meetings, has received twenty-two new members, and that other additions are expected.

SOME gentlemen, who are strangely enamored of antiquity, quite recently invited that venerable fossil, Mr. JAMES BUCHANAN, to a public feast. He had more sense than they, for he decided not to expose himself to observation.

SO MUCH has been said about the diary of BOOTH, the assassin, the public will not be satisfied until it shall be published.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The London Times has four special correspondents at Paris to write up the Exhibition.

—John Mitchell, who died last week in New Orleans was one of Jackson's riflemen at the battle in 1815.

—One of the earliest cases of Barrister Judah P. Benjamin in London was a suit against the United States.

—A young "gentleman" who passed an A No. 1 examination at a celebrated law school in New England, a year ago, turns out to be a beautiful and fast young lady, of good family, who was, in 1863, a Second Lieutenant in the army. She'll do!

—Brick Pomeroy, a tomahawk journalist, for the present in New Orleans, is supposed to be as mad as he is bad. He is reported to swear that Northern Democrats will fight in less than two years, but advises the South to let them fight it out. The comment of The Mobile Times is commendably cool: "We'll follow the advice at the risk of our lives."

—Mr. Grubb, an optician of Dublin, has completed an enormous reflecting telescope, which was ordered by the Victoria Legislature, for the sum of £5,000, for Melbourne. The tubes of the instrument are four feet and a half in diameter; the sides are made of tapering steel ribs, and the entire instrument is not only singular on account of its dimensions, but also because of its completeness, accuracy and "finish."

—The statistics in our Washington dispatches show that the total receipts of the Government for 1866 were $523,977,389, nearly $50,000,000 more than those of any other year. $300,000,000 were raised by internal taxation, and $180,000,000 came from imports. The total expenditures in the year were $328,086,215, and while part of the balance has been used in payment of the debt, much is reserved as a basis of specie payment.

—The Friend, a Quaker paper, speaks enthusiastically of Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton. It says of her:

> "Her power over an intelligent audience is irresistible. Keen as Phillips, majestic as Sumner, elegant as Curtis, tender and womanly as Lucretia Mott, magnetizing a magic logic with the most ethereal graces, her claim to a place among the first of American orators and statesmen is beyond dispute. Her rightful place is in the Senate."

PITTSBURGH, May 19, 1866.

Messrs. Hostetter & Smith:

GENTLEMEN—During a visit to the West, last fall, I contracted chills and fever, which brought me to my bed, and finally terminated in typhoid fever, and confined me to my room for several months, during which time I was physically so prostrated that I almost despaired of ever recovering my health; having almost entirely lost my appetite for days, not being able to eat a morsel, added to which I was distressed with a reeling sensation in my head, and passed many sleepless nights—all from debility caused by my prostrate condition, brought about by fever. At this stage of my condition a friend recommended me to use your celebrated Stomach Bitters, but being morally opposed to the use of stimulants in any form, I at first declined, but afterwards yielded my prejudices, and, after taking the medicine for several weeks, my appetite returned, and with it I am rapidly regaining my former strength and vigor. My sleep (from the loss of which I have suffered much,) has never been better than it is now, and the reeling sensation (before alluded to) has entirely left me. My bowels, which were much constipated and irregular, are now quite natural, and in fact, I am glad to say that I feel myself a new man, and tender you this testimonial of my appreciation of your valuable preparation, in order that others, suffering as I have, may avail themselves of its virtues, which prejudice kept me from enjoying for so long a period. I may also add that my physician, after seeing the beneficial effect of your Bitters on me, recommended that I use them regularly.

Yours, very respectfully,

E. BOURNE,

PENNSYLVANIA
Agricultural Land Scrip
FOR SALE.

The Board of Commissioners now offer for sale 520,000 acres of Agricultural College Land Scrip, being the balance of the Scrip granted to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the endowment of Agricultural Colleges in this State.
Proposals for the purchase of this Land Scrip, addressed to "The Board of Commissioners of Agricultural Land Scrip," will be received at the Surveyor General Office, at Harrisburg, until 12 o'clock M.,

On Wednesday, April 10, 1867.

This land may be located in any State or Territory by the holders of the scrip upon any of the unappropriated lands (except mineral lands) of the United States, which may be subject to sale at private entry. Each piece of scrip represents a quarter section of one hundred and sixty acres, is issued in blank, and will be transferable, without endorsement or formal assignment. The blank need not be filled until the scrip is presented for location and entry, when the party holding it can fill the blank and enter the land in his own name. Bids must be made as per acre, and no bids will be received for less than one quarter section.
The Scrip will be issued immediately on the payment of the money to the Surveyor General. On all bids for a less quantity than 40,000 acres, one-third of the purchase money must be paid within ten days, and the remaining two-thirds within thirty days after notification of acceptance of the bid or bids by the Board of Commissioners.

MONDAY, APRIL 1, 1867.

THE MANUFACTURES OF PITTSBURGH.

ALLEGHENY CITY, March 29, 1867.

EDITORS PITTSBURGH GAZETTE:—In commencing my series of articles upon the manufactures of Pittsburgh and vicinity, (as I had promised you,) I wish your readers to distinctly understand, that my sole aim is to improve, as far as my little knowledge can, the different styles of productions the city boasts of. For depend upon it, although we may ourselves imagine we cannot be excelled, yet, as I said in my last, we are very much behind other parts of the world, especially in engineering, and in the manufacture of iron and steel; this assertion of mine, I will endeavor to prove, if your readers can find patience to read my several productions.

This first letter I intend as an introduction or preface to several articles which will appear in rotation, upon steam boilers and boiler explosion, and will introduce several new theories for the causes of the several awful calamities which from year to year occur. And will also show the best and most approved manner of constructing boilers of modern design.

The above subject is of vital importance to all civilized countries, since without the aid of these valuable structures we would not be able so easily to carry on our great manufactures, to run our magnificent steamboats, or to transfer by the aid of man's nearest approach to nature (the locomotive) our fellow-citizens from one part of this vast country to another. When we look at the vast number of employees throughout the world who depend upon steam for their daily bread, and also the majority of the population of this civilized globe who would not be able to get the necessaries or the luxuries of this life without its aid, I cannot but say that the subject is of vital importance to the whole community. And when again we imagine the hundreds of thousands throughout the world who are in continual contact with steam boilers, we certainly must concur that the greatest attention and care should be given in the construction and management of these "pent up volcanoes."

Although much has been said and written upon steam boilers, a great deal more may be safely advanced, since, by the continual change going on in the style of the several manufactures of this globe, everything that tends to help any such branch of business ought certainly to be altered to suit. I do not intend to say much about the different builds of boilers that are scattered all over the engineering world, but will merely take the chief predominating style of this country, and will give various rules and formulæ that are calculated for the construction of safe boilers, and what I mean by safe boilers are those that will stand well the pressure they were built for. I do not consider a boiler safe that may be constructed to bear a working pressure of say one hundred pounds to the square inch, and afterwards the pressure be increased to one hundred and fifty pounds; although it may for a time run with the latter pressure safely, yet it does not follow that it be safe or economical in its workings.

The chief features in constructing boilers (and let it be understood that most of my remarks in future will be upon ordinary boilers, i. e. those that do not have an artificial draught,) is just to know the horse power required, and also the pressure of steam it is wanted to withstand, and then there is some chance for the designer; but when boilers are made at "hap hazard," and no account taken, or any calculations made for whatever quantity or volume of steam may be required, it shows great lack of judgment, not only on the builder, but also on the part of the purchaser. This fact is very often the case here in Pittsburgh, for instance, say a person requires a boiler to supply steam for a ten horse power engine, instead of going to some competent engineer for advice, he either buys a second hand one, or else he goes to some obscure and cheap builder of boilers, and tells him his wants; this boiler maker imagines that having just made a similar article that found ample steam for a twenty horse power engine, if he made the required boiler half the size of the latter one, it would be proportionable to the requirements, and acting upon this idea the boiler is made; and when the purchaser gets the article and tries it with a moderate supply of coal or whatever fuel he may use, he finds it totally inadequate to supply enough steam for the engine, in consequence of which he either has resource to artificial means, or else he increases the amount of fuel to keep up the pressure wanted, whilst bushels and bushels of fuel that might have been burnt escapes from his chimney in the form of smoke, covering the whole neighborhood with dirt and soot, and thus keeping up the name of our Smoky City.

One style of boiler is not always suitable for all grades of engines. What will apply to some peculiar class of engines will not suit others. This has been proved time after time. There is also another thing to be taken into consideration in regard to constructing boilers, and that is to get the number of revolutions the engine is required to make. This is of vital importance, as by this help we are aided in getting the proper proportions. For the benefit of some who may not know the best and most approved way of getting the nominal horse power of engine, I will give the following formula—this is for a light pressure engine: We will suppose the engine constructed, and a boiler attached to it that will not, by fair means, supply sufficient steam to run advantageously, and so we need a new generator that will fill the requirements. We take the pressure in pounds on each circular inch of the boiler, and deduct four pounds, and then multiply the remainder by the square of the cylinder of the engine in inches, and by the velocity of the piston inject, and divide the product by 33,000, and within have the nominal power of the engine—the effective horse power can only be reached by the indicator. Having the horse power of the engine, we now want to find the proportions of a boiler to suit it economically. The rule is as follows. The diameter in feet added to the diameter of the internal flue and multiplied by the length in feet and divide by 6 and this will bring us the result. A very good proportion for a boiler of ordinary capacity is Firegrate—½ square feet per H. P. or per cubic foot of water to evaporate each hour. Total effective heating surface varying from 9 to 16 square feet for every foot of fire-grate; 9 as a minimum when the boiler is required to be as compact as possible, and 16 as a maximum when the greater economy of fuel is required. But in the case of engines, whose pistons travel irregularly, i.e. those that have to run at various speeds, or engines working expansively, the proper way is to find what steam is required by the engine and what evaporation of water is required to produce that steam, and then to arrange the proportions of the boiler to give the required result. The best formula extant to find the evaporation of water to supply an engine with steam (the boiler being pressed to 160 lbs. per square inch) is to find the cubic feet contained in the cylinder, steam passages and casing, and multiply by the revolutions of the engine per minute and divide by 2·2, which gives us the evaporation required.

Some people may and do avouch that theory is not as beneficial as practice; but my opinion is that both are exceedingly useful but neither are of much account without the aid of the other, whilst with both we can accomplish everything. In closing this letter, I cannot but say that the greatest attention should be paid to the proportions and constructions of steam boilers, since the most fatal results have arisen from defective and weak ones.

Yours, &c.
PERCIVAL BECKETT, M. E.

Disorderly House.

Mary Boyle occupies a house on Carson street, in the Ninth ward, in which Henry Larison, Mary Haney and Wm. Taylor have lodgings. This domicil has gained quite a notoriety of late by being the scene of frequent brawls, the principal actor in each fracas being the proprietress of the establishment. These entertainments proved anything but edifying to a certain James McGuigham, who resides in close proximity to Mary's ranch, and after "putting up with them" for a season in the vain hope that time would abate the nuisance, he appeared before Alderman Taylor, on Saturday, and made oath against Mrs. Boyle and her lodgers for keeping and maintaining a disorderly house, contrary to an act of Assembly, made and provided. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of the accused.

New Court Hours.

The following order was made by the Judges of the several Courts on Saturday:

At a meeting of the Judges of the several Courts, convened for the purpose of considering the memorial of the Bar in relation to the holding of but one session of the Court daily, it was

Resolved, That hereafter the daily sessions of the several Courts commence at ten o'clock a. m. and close at 3 o'clock, p. m.—except in the trial of homicide cases in the Court of Oyer and Terminer.

And now, March 30th, 1867, it is ordered accordingly.

PER CURIAM.

Assault and Battery.

A lady named Alice Gormarly appeared before Alderman Lynch on Saturday, and made oath against Agnes Murray for assault and battery. The prosecutrix states that the said Agnes did enter her premises in Shingiss street, in the Eighth ward, and did, with malice and without provocation, strike a red cow belonging to the deponent. On the owner of the bovine animal interfering to save it from further abuse, the accused struck Mrs. Gormarly in the face with a stick, inflicting a painful though not dangerous wound. The defendant was arrested and held in $500 bail for a hearing to-morrow.

Abused.

William J. Huffman and Samuel J. Chamberlain are neighbors and reside in Jefferson township. The sweet harmony usually enjoyed by rustics was in their case rudely broken on Friday by Samuel knocking down and otherwise abusing William; for doing which he was arrested on Saturday, and brought before Alderman Strain, who after a hearing held him to bail for trial at the next session of the Criminal Court.

Accident.—Margaret Allen, an old lady residing on Chartiers street, in Manchester, while attempting to gain a seat in a spring wagon on Sunday morning frightened the horse attached to the vehicle, who ran off, precipitating her to the pavement with considerable violence. She was removed to her residence, immediately in front of which the accident occurred, and her injuries dressed by Dr. Roberts. Save a few bruises she was not otherwise injured.

Petition for Divorce.

In the Court of Common Pleas, Saturday, were presented the petition of Lewis Sigmor praying for a divorce from his wife Anna M. The marriage was solemnized February 18th, 1864, and the petitioner asks to be divorced from his wife (Ann M. Watenpol) on the ground of "her abusive, vulgar and profane language, her threats to do him great bodily harm and take his life, her repeated assaults, indignities and injuries to his person," compelling him "to seek protection, safety and comfort elsewhere." A subpœna was ordered to issue, returnable on the first Monday in June.

Dismissed.—A Teutonic lady named Philomena Meyers, residing in the Second ward, Allegheny, came to the office of Alderman Strain, on Saturday, and charged a certain Joseph Stetler with selling liquor to men of known intemperate habits, prominent among whom was her unworthy spouse, Gotleib Meyers. After a hearing the case was dismissed, the evidence being insufficient to warrant the charge, and Philomena was forced to pay the costs.

Gave Bail.—Sarah Montgomery, charged with adultery before Alderman Mullin, of Allegheny city, was brought before that magistrate on Saturday and forced to give bail in the sum of $500 for her appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
SATURDAY, March 30, 1867.

The following are the New York stock quotations for to-day: Gold, 134; 1881, bonds, 109½; Five Twenties, old, 109¼; Five Twenties, '65, 108¼; do new, 107¼; Seven Thirties, 105¼. —It seems to be well understood (says the Philadelphia Ledger) that the Secretary of the Treasury will not contract the currency faster than four millions per month in any one month; at the same time there is no good reason in anything that he has yet done for believing that he will not aim to cancel that month. There may be found difficulties in the way of his effecting this purpose, and his next monthly statement may show that he has made no contraction in the month of March, and the heavy payments from the Treasury in the month of May may require a similarly close husbanding of resources through the month of April for that purpose. There are other heavy payments all through the year which may interfere with contraction the greater part of the time; still, the Secretary of the Treasury has given no intimation that he will abate in effort to cancel four millions per month. The dullness of business generally throughout the country is supposed by some persons to arise from the contraction of the currency which has already been made. It would probably be more correct to attribute it to the contraction of credits than to the contraction of the currency. And existing arrangements have been aggravated by the fear, the uncertainty and the spasmodic movements caused by the methods of contraction adopted. The loan market is less active than was in some quarters anticipated. There is, however, a full demand for accommodation on call, with an adequate supply of capital seeking investment. The partial increase of activity results from the calling in of loans by some of the banks. But the supply of available capital is large, and in the inertness of business good borrowers on satisfactory securities are likely to have little difficulty in obtaining all the accommodation they require.

—The New York Times says the 1st of April National Bank statement continues to exercise a partial influence on the money market this week, though the demand has been relieved by large purchases of 7-30s by the Treasury office, nearly a million and a half of dollars. It is generally felt on the street that the preparations for the quarterly National statement are pretty much through with, and that after Saturday the market will become easier, if not cheaper.

—The Tribune says reports are industriously circulated that Secretary McCulloch has determined to stop contraction, and taken measures to ease the money market by purchasing 7-30s with his balances. The statements are without foundation, but on the other hand there is ample authority for stating that funding and incidental contraction will be pursued as steadily as ever.

—The report of the Comptroller of the Currency of the State of Illinois gives the following statement of the condition of the banks of Illinois: Capital (in round figures) eleven millions; loans, seventeen millions; deposits, twenty-one millions; legal tenders six millions. Massachusetts has seven times the banking capital of Illinois, and five times the net bank circulation of that State.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
SATURDAY, March 30, 1867.

The produce markets have been fairly active during the past week, the transactions in the leading commodities being rather larger in the aggregate than for some weeks past, still there is yet room for improvement. The fact that the rolling mills will resume operations within a few days, has imparted a much better feeling in commercial circles, and our people generally have reason to rejoice at this important event to Pittsburgh.

GRAIN—Wheat is in limited supply and firm; No. 2 may be quoted at $2,65 to $2,70, and No. 1 at $2,85@2,90. Oats firm but unchanged, sales at 53, on track, and 55 to 57, in store. Corn is quiet; sale of 500 bushels shelled, to arrive, at 75—prime yellow would bring more. Rye is in demand at $1,40. Barley, is wanted at $1 to $1,10 for good to prime Spring.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
SATURDAY, March 30, 1867.

CRUDE—The market was rather quiet to day, the excitement which prevailed on Thursday and Friday having pretty well subsided, and, if anything, prices were a shade weaker. It is said that some of those who bought during the "flurry" have since sold at the same figure, indicating a want of confidence, and showing that their impetuosity got the better of their judgment. The sales reported to-day are three thousand barrels to be delivered on first water, on private terms, and 100 bbls at 7¾, bbls returned. It is said that offers to sell at 7¾ were made quite freely without meeting any response on the part of buyers, while yesterday afternoon some holders were asking 8c, and there were but very few, if any sellers, at 7¾. The sales during the last two or days have been quite large, one "clique," we understand, having bought between thirty and forty thousand barrels, to put in tank on speculation. As we have before intimated, it was these tank buyers and speculators that caused the recent excitement, and it is intimated that if these parties had have held off and kept quiet, they might have filled their tanks at lower figures. At Oil City on Friday, oil was quoted at $2,40 to $2,50 per bbl, while on Wednesday, one Pittsburgh buyer, it is reported, bought ten thousand barrels, at prices ranging from $2 to $2.22.

REFINED—The market for bonded oil was dull and neglected to-day, and, indeed, this has been the case throughout the entire week. The eastern and European advices continue unfavorable, and there is but few, if any, buyers at an any advance, notwithstanding our refiners, generally, will now sell at current prices, in consequence of the advance in crude. We have but a single sale to report, five hundred barrels prime light straw to white, on the spot, at 20¾, on cars here. Standard white could be sold at 21½ to 22, on cars here, and 28, possibly 28½, delivered in Philadelphia, and these may be regarded as the extreme of the market. It is said that there are one hundred and forty-three thousand hundred barrels of refined oil in phia and New York ready for ship
foreign ports. Free oil is dull

REVIEW OF PETROLEUM FOR THE PAST THREE MONTHS, AND PROSPECTIVE FUTURE OF THE YEAR.

The characteristic feature of the oil market the first three months of this year has been a still further decline in the price of both crude and refined, many contracts having been carried over from 1866, and either delivered or settled with a heavy loss to the buyers.

In the commencement of the year a speculative demand sprang up for forward delivery, and heavy sales were made, principally to speculators, covering the entire year of 1867, at prices ranging from 30 to 40 cents per gallon, Philadelphia delivery, under the impression that the lowest figures had been reached. After the opening of navigation in February, these prices could not be maintained, and crude oil, which had been firm at 8½ and 9 cents declined to 6¼, 6 cents, and a few sales were made as low as 5¾ cents. Refined oil sympathised and sold as low as 25 to 25½ cents for spot delivery, in Philadelphia.

Operations in crude oil had scarcely started on a fair scale when navigation on the Allegheny closed again. Crude oil became scarce, and refined oil advanced from 1 to 2 cents per gallon, owing to a firmer crude market, and the approach of the end of the month of March, when large contracts matured.

Owing to these variations of the last three months uncertainty of action seems to have taken possession of both buyers and sellers, the latter refuse to sell at the prices current when the river was open, and the former can see no good reason for paying the advance.

Under such circumstances it may prove interesting to all engaged in the trade to take a broad view of all the points of the matter, and this, it is our purpose to endeavor to give.

The actual price of oil depends on three facts, to wit: Production, consumption, and the actual stock on hand. It is our intention to take these points up and examine them in the order above enumerated.

That the present production of crude oil is large, we believe will be freely admitted by all who have given the subject attention, at the same time it is averred that the present low prices, rendering the production unprofitable, must necessarily tend to its diminution, and that a sufficiently large number of wells are not being put down to compensate for the deficit in the old wells that have been pumped out.

This is the great "bug bear" that is continually thrust at buyers, and without a shadow of truth, as we think an examination of the facts will show.

There are a very large number of wells being bored now (and from all reports) with considerable success. Most of them being put down by parties already interested in other wells now pumping, who would not very probably continue in a business that was a losing one. It may surprise some people to know that the well owners to-day are receiving as much, and perhaps even more than they did one year ago. At one time in 1866, the price at the wells ranged from $2 to $3 per barrel, out of which $1 per barrel had to be paid for government tax. At the present time, the price is $1,60 to $1,90 per barrel. If the great reduction in wages, price of coal, transportation waste, breakage of empty barrels, useless cooperage, etc., etc., (the majority of all oil being now handled in bulk) be considered, it will be found that the present price is at least equal to that of last year, notwithstanding the price is cheaper in Pittsburgh, showing conclusively that the well owners have not been getting less, but that the doing away of all extra charges, and less cost of transportation, etc., is what lessens the price here.

As regards the statement that all the smaller wells have been stopped, we think it is incorrect. We think no well not actually pumped dry has been stopped. Of course, it must not be imagined that these smaller wells are pumped day and night, (as with larger wells) but generally three or four hours per day—the oil being allowed to collect during the remaining portion of the twenty-hours. In this way one person may run several wells; thus, reducing materially the cost of production, fuel being saved, and the entire business being carried on more economically than ever before; many of the owners run their wells themselves.

Taking all the circumstances, we rather expect an increase of production during the summer than a diminution. At least, for the present, not the slightest apprehension need be felt that the supply will be short, on the contrary, it looks very much as though it would be in excess of our wants.

The present production of the Allegheny region may be put down at from 10 to 11,000 barrels according to the most careful estimate, but to make every allowance for over estimation, we will call it 9,000 barrels, the production of Smith's Ferry, West Virginia, etc., is at least 1000 barrels per day, making the total production 10,000 barrels per day.

The second fact to be considered is the consumption. In the first years of the introduction of this article, the consumption increased from year to year in a very high ratio, but it may now be considered in a great measure as introduced, the increase being more gradual, and keeping pace with the increase of population, or only a small per centage per annum.

We, therefore, consider it fair to assume that we cannot count any longer on using up every year 300,000 to 400,000 barrels more than we did the preceding year. In Europe, also, the consumption seems to have reached its maximum, and from lately published statements regarding the production of oil in various parts of Europe, there is more probability of a decline of the consumption of our oil in that quarter than an increase. The finding of petroleum in our country, and the enormous business arising therefrom has stimulated the people of the old world to do some boring on their own account, resulting in their discovering oil in various localities, which must interfere with the sale of our own oil.

According to the official statements published by the Austrian Government, the production of crude oil in the Austrian province of Gallicia, during the year 1866, was not less than 600,000 barrels, from which 350,000 barrels of refined were obtained. The wells of Wallachia are pumping at the rate of 400,000 barrels per annum, most of which is sent to France. The largest production, however, is obtained in Southern Russia, along the coast of the Black Sea. The latest accounts from that point state that flowing wells as large as 3000 barrels per day have been struck, and already Odessa, Constantinople and many of the Mediterranean ports are being supplied from this new source.

The immediate prospect before us is therefore rather for a decrease than an increase, and as far as consumption is concerned, in making estimate for this year, it will be better to keep near those of last year.

Last year the consumption of American refined oil, at home and abroad, was about 2,200,000 barrels; by placing the consumption this year at 2,400,000 barrels, we will in all probability be more likely to be above the mark than below it. Comparing the figures of production with those of consumption, we find the former to be equal to 2,650,000 barrels of refined oil, and the latter only amounts to 2,400,000, leaving a surplus of 250,000 barrels as on hand January 1, 1868, to which add stock on hand January, 1, 1867, and we have 1,650,000, as stock January 1st, 1868, as shown below. This would not be so heavy a stock if that already on hand were not so large.

According to the most careful compilation, the stock on hand, in the United States in crude and refined oil, reduced to refined, was Jan. 1, 1867, bbls.......... 800,000
Stock in Europe and afloat January 1, 1867.......... 600,000
1,400,000
Add production for 1867, on basis of 10,000 per day, reduced to refined...2,650,000
4,050,000
Deduct consumption in 1867.......... 2,400,000
Leaving a surplus on hand January 1, 1868.......... 1,650,000

Or a stock equal to nearly a whole year's consumption.

How the European markets look may be seen from comparison of this year's stock with that of last year, taking some of the principal markets only for our purpose, these figures being up to March 15th, when the last reports were received:

	1867.	1866.	Increase.
London	36,000	9,000	4 times
Antwerp	60,000	15,500	near 4 "
Havre	27,000	8,000	over 3 "
Bremen	48,000	7,000	near 7 "

Such a statement should cause every reflecting man to weigh the subject well, and to come to the conclusion that after all there is not so great an inducement to build tanks for the purpose of storing, and less reason for buyers rushing wildly into the market to fill tankage as if their very existence depended on their being quickly filled. The present time would seem to be less favorable for purchase than most any other; from appearance June, July and August the market will be lower than at any other time during the year, for by that time the production will probably be the heaviest, and this market being one of the largest for reception of crude, the amount thrown upon it in those months will be more than can be cared for, producing low figures. All the facts of the case point to a low market for the entire year, and as each month glides by, the good prices that were formerly obtained for future delivery gradually become reduced, and the rate for spot oil settles down to a price ranging at 25 to 27 cents for refined in Philadelphia.

Taking this view of matters, refiners would do better to sell freely for future delivery at the best current prices, and leave crude oil alone. This latter must finally find an outlet, the tanks now building at Oil City and other points will soon be filled, and many of those who count on doubling their money by tanking, finding the process a slow one, and from tightness of the money market and other causes, will become sellers, and the result will be lower figures than have yet been thought of.

RIVER NEWS.

The river continues to recede slowly at this point, with but little over seven feet in the channel by the Allegheny marks last evening. The weather was clear and pleasant.

The Argosy and Nora left Cincinnati for Pittsburgh on Friday, as did also the Kate Robinson, for St. Louis. The Ida Rees and Minnie were advertised to leave Cincinnati for Pittsburgh on Saturday. The Armenia, en route from this port, was at Cairo on Friday, with six hundred tons of iron ore.

The Ingomar, from Matamoras, has arrived, and will return again to-day as usual. The Argosy from Cincinnati, will arrive to-morrow and return again on Wednesday.

The Maggie Hays for Cincinnati, and the Luella for the Upper Missouri gold regions cleared on Saturday. The Maggie had a fair freight list, and quite a number of passengers, while the Luella had about all the freight she could take. Capt. Anawalt's model barges also left in charge of the tug boat Wild Duck, for St. Louis, with some eight hundred tons and engagements below, including two thousand kegs of nails at Wheeling.

The Kate Putnam got in from Louisville about noon on Saturday, with an excellent freight list, the great proportion of which is consigned to Clark & Co., and goes east.

The Ida Rees No. 2 arrived from Oil City, and the Echo No. 2 was expected on Saturday night or Sunday. The Allegheny river trade, to use a common expression, may be considered "played out," until there is more water.

The Kenton, Capt. J. H. Dunlap, is filling up rapidly, and will soon be ready to take her departure for New Orleans, and the Dubuque, Capt. Parker, is announced to leave for St. Louis and the Upper Mississippi on next Saturday without fail.

The Bellevernon, Capt. Darragh, will be ready to leave for St Louis and the Missouri river to-morrow or next day, and passengers and shippers should bear this in mind, and act accordingly. The Leclaire, Captain Saint, will take her departure for the Upper Missouri Gold Regions to-morrow.

The Ezra Porter, Capt. J. H. Porter, will leave for Cincinnati to-morrow. The Porter is a side wheeler, has superior accommodations for passengers, and is in charge of careful and experienced officers.

The towboat Hercules arrived at Louisville on Friday evening, with a tow of coal and left again for Pittsburgh with two barges of iron ore and four empty barges. The Hercules is one of the most powerful towboats that was ever built here, and consequently, she can bring up a big tow. By the way, it way it may not be out of place to state that her owner has removed his office to the corner of Market and Water streets (up stairs) where he will be glad to see everybody unless it should be his creditors.

The Leonora No. 2 left Cincinnati for Pittsburgh on Thursday, and the Argosy was advertised to leave on Friday. The Minnie and Ida Rees passed Jeffersonville on Thursday enroute for this port. Among other items of freight, the Minnie has 250 tons of iron ore.

A Cairo correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial is responsible for the following: A huge joke was perpetrated on some of our citizens and a lot of strangers waiting here for boats. The steamer Mississippi has been loading here since yesterday morning, and about eleven o'clock last night she moved from the freight depot to the wharf boat. The night was very dark and rainy, and some wag, knowing that her name could not be seen until visitors were on board, started the report along the levee that the Great Republic had arrived and would only remain one hour. Immediately there was a grand rush, and those who had acquaintances in the city who had expressed a desire to see the great steamer, went and called their friends out of their beds. For about an hour the Mississippi was thronged as never before since her first trip, and great was the indignation as the mammoth "sell" was found out.

The Cincinnati Commercial says: "If the Richmond don't run that will be awful." Cons., we'll be satisfied if she don't fly. We wouldn't like to travel on a vessel between wind and water, besides. She will do more than the Republic has done or ever will do. We are satisfied that the Richmond will run, and as the country chap said when he "let his mar out"—"Ef she don't dew sum of the gol darndest, all firedest, tallest git up and gittin' yew ever seed, then I'll jes say that I ain't a judge o' hoss flesh—that's all.—Louisville Democrat.

The fastest steamboats that have ever navigated American waters were built at New Albany—hulls, cabins, and machinery—by New Albany mechanics—New Albany Ledger.

This is simply gas, and shows either ignorance or stupidity. The Hudson river boats, the Chauncey Vibbard, the Daniel Drew, the Richmond, and others that we might name, have made twenty-five miles an hour during the whole trip for months together. The E. K. Collins that used to ply between Buffalo and Detroit in 1854, made thirty miles an hour as her regular time. In regard to magnificence and regal outfit these boats have never had any competitors. Brag is a good dog, but a little regard should be had for the truth.

The Evansville Journal is in ecstacies over the Great Republic. It says: "A carping hypercritic might find faults, but the candid admirer of real beauty will only note her perfections."

A New Albany paper is severe on a dinkey stern-wheeler recently harbored at this port. It says: "The water-fall steamer Petrolia, bound from Wabash river to Evansville, loaded with corn, was compelled to throw overboard four hundred sacks from sinking. The loss of the boat would certainly be trifling, though she does carry two captains, one to ring the bell and the other to watch the clerk to keep him from pocketing the "odd change."

There are four boats now on the Tennessee river above the shoals, and one or two more will soon be added. The Holston is running from Bridgeport to Decatur, carrying freight and passengers. The Cherokee is at Decatur transferring passengers, &c., for the railroad there. The Mary Boyd is transferring passengers on the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, at Strawberry Plains. The Resaca is making regular trips between Chattanooga and ports above. The Wauhatchie has been dismantled, but is to be refitted shortly, and placed upon the river again.

We extract the following items from the Cincinnati Commercial of Friday:

The Julia, which left for Nashville last night, has three hundred and fifty tons of bulk meat engaged at Graysville, Illinois, on the Wabash River for Cincinnati. Yesterday the Marietta packet Ohio No. 3, reshipped on the St. James. It appears there has been a trade. As we understand it, the Ohio No. 3 is to be appraised by three disinterested parties, while the St. James is valued at $25,000—the appraisement of the Ohio to be taken as stock in the St. James. The Ohio retires from the Marietta trade, while Capt. Blagg, with the Ohio's crew, takes charge of the St. James, extending her trips to Wheeling, leaving Cincinnati every Thursday evening. Capt. Jesse Y. Hurd, formerly of the Missouri, has purchased the commanding interest in the side wheel steamer Monsoon, and will continue her in the New Orleans and Red River trade going as high as Jefferson. Among the notables in Cincinnati, we find Benjamin Crawford, of Pittsburgh, Special Agent of the United States Treasury; Capt. Daniel G. Taylor, of Pittsburgh, Supervisory Inspector of the Fourth District; Capt. John Devinney, of Steubenville, Ohio, Supervisory Inspector for the Seventh District, and John Schaffer of St. Louis, Ex-Local Inspector, for the Fourth District. The Silver Cloud No. 2 reships her Pittsburgh freight on the Nora, leaving at noon to-day; Capt. Sam Shuman is commanding the Nora this trip.

Capt. Dryden telegraphs from Jeffersonville, under date of Friday as follows: The steamers Westmoreland and Annie Laurie passed up. The towboats W. H. Brown, Friendship, Diamond and J. N. Phillips, with heavy tows of coal, iron and salt, passed down. The F. W. Strader and Julia No. 2 passed down. Our railroad company was robbed last night of $21,330 by knocking down the watchman and gagging him.

The Louisville Democrat says: The Ida Rees (look like the Great Republic on a small scale) was at the wharf yesterday. She was built at Pittsburgh, and we believe, left for that port.
